MONTHLY COMMENTARY

The US Federal Reserve (the Fed) opted to leave interest rates unchanged following the conclusion of their November policy meeting. At the time of the meeting, the committee felt that the risks to the economic outlook in the United States appeared roughly balanced. Since the meeting, the outlook for global growth had deteriorated as tensions between the United States and China escalated, the United Kingdom and Europe appear no closer to a Brexit deal and violent protests have erupted in France. Both the German and Japanese economies contracted in the third quarter, highlighting the risks posed to global growth by the escalation in trade tensions between the United States and China.

The Fed is still expected to hike interest rates by 0.25% when they meet again in December, although the probability, according to Bloomberg, has declined to less than 70%. Importantly, the probability of another rate hike during 2019 has now reduced to less than 34%. The front of the US yield curve has inverted after the yield on 2-year US Treasuries rose above the yield on 5-year US Treasuries. The yield on 10-year US Treasuries has been falling on expectations of lower global inflation and economic growth and is now below 3% again.

Against this backdrop, US equity markets proved extremely resilient and the S&P 500 gained 2.0% in November. There was a recovery in the prices of technology companies, following October's sharp sell-off, while the energy sector came under pressure following a substantial fall in the oil price. Importantly for equity investors, fundamentals appear largely intact as US companies reported another quarter of strong earnings growth. However, increased geopolitical risks appear to be weighing on investor appetite for equities and apart from the US, very few markets were able to register positive returns in November.

In South Africa, the yield on government's benchmark R186 bond declined by more than 40 basis points and the rand strengthened by 90c against the US dollar to finish November at R13.87/US$. Investors appeared more confident about the prospects for emerging markets in 2019 and emerging market ETFs experienced significant inflows during the month. At the same time, the Monetary Policy Committee (MPC) of the South African Reserve Bank raised official interest rates by 0.25% following the conclusion of its November policy meeting. The decision was by no means unanimous and was predicated on the view at the time that the Fed would be raising interest rates at least three times next year. The MPC is now not expected to hike again until the Fed's "gradual" interest rate normalisation resumes, which may only be in 2020, if at all.

The strong rand weighed on the performance of the South African equity market in November. The resources sector tumbled 11.5% as commodity prices softened and the rand strengthened. Among the industrial heavyweights, Naspers staged a strong recovery in the second half of November as the price of Tencent jumped more than 15% in the final weeks of the month. British American Tobacco's share price tumbled 25% during November after the FDA announced it was looking to ban the sale of menthol cigarettes in the United States. Overall, the FTSE/JSE All Share Index declined by 3.2% in November and is now down 12.3% in 2018.

South Africa's listed property sector failed to make any headway despite the improved sentiment towards emerging markets. Rebois Property Fund announced a more than 50% reduction in its final distribution, while several domestically-focused listed property companies warned that property fundamentals deteriorated in the second half of 2018 and that distribution growth in 2019 would be low or negative. At the same time, Viceroy Research published a report on NEPI Rockcastle entitled "Horsing Around the Stable", in which they contend that it is impossible to reconcile the company's international earnings, management enriched themselves through M&A and investors were hoodwinked through misleading analysis. As a result, South Africa's listed property sector declined by 1.3% in November and is now down 24.5% in 2018. The current one-year forward yield on the FTSE/JSE South African Listed Property Index is now 9.6%, while distributions are expected to grow by approximately 5% per annum in the medium term.

The Bridge Managed Growth Fund declined by 0.7% in November. The Fund continues to allocate 65% of the portfolio to high quality businesses that are expected to deliver double-digit earnings growth over the medium and long term and reward shareholders with above-average dividend yields. The Fund also allocates 25% of the portfolio to listed property companies that offer the highest possible combination of income yield and income growth, while at the same time providing an acceptable level of property and geographic diversification. The balance of the portfolio comprises short and medium-dated government and corporate debt.

Transaction costs (TC) is a measure to determine the costs incurred in buying and selling the underlying assets of a portfolio or CIS, expressed as a percentage of the average daily value of the portfolio or CIS calculated over a period of three years on an annualised basis. TC are a necessary cost in administering the portfolio or CIS and impacts returns. It should not be considered in isolation as returns may be impacted by many other factors over time including market returns, the type of portfolio or CIS, the investment decisions of the investment manager and the TER. Total investment charges is a measure of the total value of portfolio incurred as costs relating to the investment of the portfolio or CIS. A higher TER / TC does not necessarily imply a poor return, nor does a low TER / TC imply a good return. The current TER may not necessarily be an accurate indication of future TER / TC's.
